County debates expansion options

by Andy Holloway

Confusion reigns at Haliburton county council over whether a new county building is needed.

Members are unsure of whether the county should build a new county building, add a $100,000 addition to the present office or put it off for another year.

Chief Administrative Officer Gary McKnight asked to proceed with a variance request for an addition to the county building. McKnight said he just wanted to see whether a variance would be granted. If not, that option could be scratched from the list.

While permission was granted to proceed with the request for variance, council members had differing opinions on the need for the addition.

"Now is the time to build a county building in the county town and put the county's people back to work," said Minden Reeve Bern Berry.

Berry was backed up by several members including Minden's Deputy Reeve Lewis Stevens and Lutterworth Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon. McMahon proposed that the office include all of the agencies which operate in the county.

"I'm convinced that the best way to spend the money is to build a new building that houses all of the agencies, including the OPP, in the county," said McMahon.

However, several others were opposed to Rain dampened the streets but not the spirits of the hundreds of people who came to Haliburton Saturday to see Santa Claus. The second Santa Claus Parade in Haliburton Village featured a variety of colourful floats and costumed walkers. Santa will be making another appearance in the county this Saturday when he takes part in the Minden community Santa Claus Parade.

Hodgson is likely candidate for wardenship

Unless there is an election this year, Dysart Reeve Chris Hodgson will be the next Warden for Haliburton County.

In his report on last Wednesday's county council meeting, Lutterworth Reeve Cam Ecclestone said he has suggested that Hodgson be nominated for the position.

"I put his name forward", Ecclestone told his fellow Lutterworth Councillors. He said Hodgson has asked for support in his bid to be the next warden.

Traditionally the county's wardenship is filled by acclamation. A single candidate is nominated for the position based on experience and on the municipality he or she represents. Reeves take turns sitting at this, the county's highest political office.

There is a procedure in the county's by-laws for an election to this office, but there has never been a need to use it.

The last Dysart reeve to head up county council was Murray Feary in 1987. In the past 10 years Cardiff is the only municipality that hasn't had a turn at the wardenship. The last warden from Cardiff Township was M.W. McGilvray in 1980.

The next County Council meeting is slated for December 7 when a decision will be made as to which of the 16 county councillors will replace George Simmons at the head of the table.

Quiet announcement reflects subdued political style

by Russ Duhaime

Bill Scott's farewell to the political front arrived with the same resounding silence that characterized his 27-year career on Parliament Hill.

Scott, the federal member for the Victoria and Haliburton riding, quietly announced at an unpublicized meeting of his riding association that he will not seek re-election. By the time the news of his retirement reached the media's ear the amiable member was securely out of reach on a hunting retreat. On Thursday no one answered the phones at his Lindsay office. And on Friday he was in transit between Lindsay and Ottawa.

Over the past few months there has been a good deal of speculation as to whether Scott would lead the local Tories into a spring election. The speculation was largely uttered by opponents who fully realize his personal popularity.

If Conservatives had a prayer of winning again in this riding, Bill Scott was the only man who could carry it off for them. In spite of the incredible unpopularity of his party, Scott's personal popularity has not waned — possibly because of his distance from the decisions made by his Conservative counterparts. After all, it was never his alliance with the party that earned this backbencher his votes. Instead, it was his amiable personality, his uncanny knack of remembering names, and his neighbourly manner that carried him through election after election.

His retirement from politics is one less worry for those who seek to replace him.

Scott's career is not studded with dazzling accomplishments. Instead, he represented his constituents in a quiet fashion, uncharacteristic of today's politicians.

"Politician" has never been a four-letter word when applied to Scott. He survived his lengthy career in parliament without the slightest hint of scandal — accomplishment enough in today's sorry political pit. He is the longest serving Conservative Member of Parliament.

Although he is regarded as a solid backbench MP, Scott has a share of the responsibilities of government. He served as a parliamentary secretary for the Minister of Veterans Affairs and as deputy critic for National Revenue. He also assisted deputy chairmen of various House committees.

Scott will continue to serve as the member for this riding until a federal election is called this spring.

Bill Scott: After 27 years in Parliament, MP quietly announces plans to retire.

Northern status offers various benefits

County pursues provincial recognition of Haliburton's northern nature

by Andy Holloway

Haliburton's request for Northern Ontario status could produce "considerable advantages", county members were told last Wednesday.

Last month, council voted to ask the province that Haliburton be considered as part of Northern Ontario on the suggestion of Transportation Minister Gilles Pouliot. In a letter to council, economic developer Mark Stagg stated that the benefits of such a move would be considerable ranging from cheaper vehicle license plates to travel assistance with respect to receiving treatment at Southern Ontario hospitals.

If the province did grant Haliburton's request, Stagg stated it could then ask the federal government to do likewise and the county would then be eligible for FEDNOR grants which encourage industry and business growth.

Parry Sound is the closest municipality that is considered to be a part of Northern Ontario. Stagg stated Parry Sound has done very well with their status. For example, the town received assistance from the Ministry of Northern Development for municipal water and sewer projects on top of what the Ministry of the Environment contributes. As well, Parry Sound received "significant dollars" towards its public infrastructure, for example harbour and recreational docking.

Some of the other advantages include:

- * Northern Ontario has a Heritage Fund which provides low interest and no interest loans as well as grants to small businesses and tourism establishments.

- * The Municipal Economic Development Assistance Program contributes up to $100,000 per year for five years to the operations of the local economic development agency for a total of $500,000 as compared to $150,000 through the Eastern Ontario program. The program is renewable.

- * Increased funding for fire departments.

- * Province increases contributions towards capital costs of building hospitals from two-thirds to five-sixths of the total.

While council heard the positive aspects of being considered a northern community, Minden Reeve Bern Berry asked that council be presented with any possible negatives to the move. Minden council withheld support for the county's bid at its meeting on November 12th until it received further information.

New county office would burden taxpayers, councillors argue

building a new county office when there is so much vacant space available in the county already.

"We are elected to be stewards of the tax payers' money," said Glamorgan Deputy Reeve Glen Madill. "Spending a million dollars on a new building or building an addition is not, in my opinion, being good stewards of the tax payers' money."

Among the moves suggested was that the county hold its monthly meetings at the board of education office in Haliburton. The county is currently planning to rotate its meetings among the municipalities, since converted its council chambers for use by an expanding services department.

"We can not afford a new county building, we all know that," said Madill. "We should use what we've got rather than duplicating everything."

However, McMahon said moving the meetings around could confuse people who wish to speak to council because they will not know where council is meeting.

Some councillors argued that they liked the idea of taking the meetings on the road because it gives them a chance to see other parts of the county.

"I don't think there's a problem with going on the road. I think it would be a learning experience," said Stanhope Deputy Reeve Eleanor Harrison.

As well, other services should be streamlined before a decision is made to build, said Dysart Reeve Chris Hodgson. One service he suggested could be affected is libraries, which are offered by the county and through the schools.

Hodgson added there are some tough decisions regarding the future of some services in the future and those decisions should be made before deciding whether to build a new office. He also urged fellow councillors to get their services running efficiently and see how much money is left.

Warden George Simmons said an addition would allow the county to meet its immediate needs, but added that it may not be the long-term solution.

"To solve the needs for the next five years, we have to think alike and unify Haliburton County," said the Warden.

County snubs waste management study

by Andy Holloway

County council rejected a plan to spend $8,400 to study how much it would cost to take over responsibility of the three Rs - recycling, reducing and reusing.

The study, recommended by the waste management master plan committee, would have cost $7,888 plus GST which would be too much, said Minden Reeve Bern Berry.

Sherbourne Reeve Ross Rabjohn who chairs the committee also argued against the study. Rabjohn said that spending the money would be a "waste" and suggested, half in jest, that it would be better spent as a Christmas bonus to "our hard-working landfill attendants."

"Right now we must reduce our waste and that means changing our lifestyle," said Rabjohn who added the county did not need a study to know that taking over waste management would be expensive. Sherbourne Township alone spent $120,000 this year on waste management programs.

As a minimum, the county would have to spend $50,000 to restart its waste management master plan said Rabjohn, urging that the county get into composting and establish standard tipping fees.

"The last council started the engine," said Rabjohn, "should this council be the one to turn it off?"

As well, Rabjohn told council there would be change in the individual dump's certificate of approval also if the county took over all of the sites.

"Just because the county takes it over there would be no change to the C of As," said Rabjohn.

Chamber asks for status quo

by Andy Holloway

Haliburton's Chamber of Commerce has urged county council to keep the chamber and the economic development office together.

Last June, the county merged its economic development office with the chamber. Rhonda Elstone and Dennis Casey of the chamber both said the arrangement has been working well, but that it took several months for the two groups to properly mesh.

"The marriage took place last spring and has been very

Austin pleads guilty to five counts of sexual assault

Greg Austin of Minden will be sentenced Tuesday after pleading guilty to five counts of sexual assault in Provincial Court in Lindsay last Wednesday.

Austin, 28, pleaded guilty to all charges, including two counts of Invitation to Sexual Touching and one count of Perjury. Sentencing was held over pending the completion of impact reports on the victims.

The investigation into allegations against Austin date back as far as 1986.

MOVING DAY: Piece by piece, the massive log building on County Road One was taken apart recently to be moved to its new home on Georgian Bay near Midland. ## Level of co-operation higher than ever, county is told beneficial for all those involved," said Casey.

The arrangement is just beginning to get "on a roll" said Casey. He said it should continue to improve if the two groups are united and the level of county funding is maintained or increased.

Dysart's Reeve Chris Hodgson told Casey that the two will continue to be together because of a contract signed with the government, but that no decision on the amount of funds will be made until budget time in spring.

The level of cooperation between the county, the townships and the chamber is the best in the 20 years he has been with the chamber, said Casey. However, a complete rethinking of how the county should be promoted is needed if it is to keep up with its competitors.

"All our competitors around us have been using this process for a long time," said Casey. "If we don't tell people we're here then we don't make any money."

The chamber helps out all businesses in the area, said Casey, not just the resorts and other tourist places.

"Someone asked me how was my chamber and I was offended. It ain't my chamber, it's the chamber of everybody in Haliburton County."

County briefs

Roads spending overflows budget

by Andy Holloway

The following items were discussed at County Council last Wednesday.

Roads over budget

The county's roads department will be about $200,000 over budget this year.

The deficit is due to the poor weather the county had which is causing "grief" for construction workers said County Engineer Dave Valentine. As well, the monthly juggling of accounts led to some confusion about how much money was left to spend. Valentine explained that government subsidies were put on in some cases and in other cases taken off.

"If we had seen it earlier, people would have been laid off. It put money into the local economy that wouldn't have been there otherwise," said Valentine. "That's the positive aspect anyway."

Council will petition the government to fund the deficit under the Transportation and Highways Act. Over one million dollars was paid out to local contractors this year for work on county roads.

Tub Fund short

The Hyland Crest Tub Fund is short about $27,000 according to county clerk Gary McKnight. Minden Reeve Bern Berry said the shortage was due to the economy. "The response from the public was not as good as in the past because of the economy."

Berry told councillors the Tub Room is now operational, although some funds have been held back to cover repairs.

In other Hyland Crest news, the home is now operating three short of its capacity. The home has room for 62 residents, but currently has only 59. The Hyland Crest Committee will be working to eliminate that gap said Berry.

Trent-Severn woes

The Trent-Severn Waterways (TSW) Commission does not seem to care about the problems it is creating in Haliburton County said both Fred Gardner and Bern Berry.

Gardner said he had tried to organize a meeting between the Water Levels Committee and the TSW commission last month, but despite the fact committee members came from as far away as Windsor, only representatives from the Haliburton TSW office attended.

Last Friday, a portion of North Water Street overflowed for the second time this summer, said Bern Berry. Berry said the reason nothing has been done is because TSW considers the problem to be just a nuisance. A meeting will be set up between TSW representatives and Minden Council to discuss the problem and Berry offered an invitation to Gardner and the water levels committee to attend that meeting.

Septic starts suffer

The Health Unit will be about $100,000 over budget due to decreased septic systems applications said Keith Tallman. However, the shortage should be made up by the Ministry of the Environment. A meeting with MOE officials has been set up for next month and at that time Tallman said the committee has to demonstrate to the MOE why the funds are needed. He added that other municipalities, for example Durham, are also having their problems.

The shortage, said Bern Berry, is actually having more effect than it appears when you consider that many of the applications are for additions to houses and not for new houses.

Welfare up and down

Payments for general welfare in October went up about $22,500 from the previous month to a total of $265,000. However, this was down from the same period last year. Last October, there were 117 requests for assistance as compared to 104 this October.

Eleanor Harrison said if the numbers keep dropping, then Social Services will come in around budget for the year. A total of 448 cases remain on file at the welfare office.

Santa Claus

is coming

to county town

Annual parade set to roll on Saturday

A year is never enough time to prepare for a parade, it seems, especially when the guest of honour is Santa Claus himself.

For the past 12 months, members of the Minden Lions have been gradually gearing up for this Saturday's parade, but still there's now way around the frantic rush of tending to all the details in time for St. Nick's arrival.

Brian Moore's office at the back of West Side Jug City is the focal point of all the activity surrounding this year's parade. As parade committee chairman, Moore has his hands full, trying to balance his time between parade business and personal business. Fellow Lions stroll through the office to deliver entry forms and assorted mail and to offer their help in any way. Behind him is a file filled with parade business and in front is a check list of details that need addressing. As each day passes a few items are crossed off the list until every detail has been taken care of. At that point, "you sit back, cross your fingers and hope," says Moore. "I hope for good weather, good representation from the community and quality floats for the parade."

Organizing a parade is a huge task, but for Moore, the parade committee and the Lions, the effort is worthwhile. "It's a privilege to be able to provide for the community," says Moore. The Lions motto is "We Serve", and in a small way that's what this parade is all about — service to the community.

Although it's commonly referred to as the Lions' Santa Claus parade, this title is incorrect. In fact, says Moore, it's a community parade organized by the Lions. Everyone chips in to make this parade a success, he says. The support from service clubs and the municipality and the people of the town is excellent, says Moore.

"All you have to do is say help and they're right there. Anybody and everybody we've asked assistance from has been there," says Moore. "We're very fortunate that the community has embraced this parade."

The parade weekend is a great introduction to the Christmas season in Minden. The festivities begin Friday night with the Midnight Madness sale at stores throughout the village. Saturday at 2 p.m. is the parade itself, followed by an audience with Santa at the firehall and free pictures of the kids on Santa's knee. Sunday is the decoration of the Christmas tree.

This year's parade promises to be as big and as exciting as ever. Last year there were 32 floats in the parade and it looks as though this year's count will at least match that.

In addition, Moore notes that the quality of the floats has been improving with each year. In the first parade there were a number of entries that were merely trucks with banners on their sides. The second year showed marked improvement and last year's entries were of such high quality the judges had a very difficult time choosing winners.

"It's getting hard for the judges, which is what we want. We want them to have the hardest time in their lives to judge these things," says Moore.

If the judges have trouble choosing the winners, it shows that the entries are all excellent, he says.

Although the Moore family is heavily involved in the organization of the parade, they are not too busy to enter a float on behalf of Westside Jug City. In fact, they managed to capture first prize in the first two years of the parade, and finished in second place last year.

After their initial win the trophy became a cherished prize in the store, says Moore. "Mom said that trophy is staying here. And it did for two years." You can bet they will be trying to get it back in their possession again this year.

To keep things as fair as possible, judges are brought in from other communities. This year's judges are coming from the Angus Lions Club.

Another highlight to look forward to in this year's parade will be the marching bands. Last year the Kawartha Cavaliers were such a hit with the large crowd that the Lions immediately booked them for a return engagement. In addition, the Lions have lined up the Lindsay Kinettes Youth Band to bring yet more music to the Main Street.

With fingers crossed and most of the items stroked from his list, Moore and the Lions will be sitting back for the next few days hoping for good weather and good crowds. "If there are people standing two to three deep, shoulder to shoulder along the parade route, you know you've done your job."

Top: The Santa Claus Parade is great fun for kids of all ages.

Left: The parade will wind its way through the streets of Minden on Saturday, November 28, starting at 2 p.m. Over 30 floats will be on display this year.

Editorial Just a plum

Here we go again. With another year winding down, Haliburton County Council is apparently planning to stick with tradition and forego the election process by appointing a new County Warden.

The highest political office within the County of Haliburton is the Wardenship. However, county councillors insist on belittling the position by filling the seat, not on the basis of merit, but on that of whose turn it is to sit at the head of the table. The fact that George Simmons was picked last year for the role speaks volumes about the process. Simmons is a fine Reeve for Snowdon Township, but he's clearly not the most qualified member of county council. He was chosen, simply because it was Snowdon Township's turn.

This year, it appears, it's Dysart's turn. Chris Hodgson may well be the best qualified and most deserving member of County Council to fill the position. And if so, he deserves the chance to earn the honour through an open election rather than through a back-room patronage-style appointment.

It's time that someone on county council openly challenges this process by forcing an election. Until this happens, there is no real honour to the warden's role. It's simply a gift handed over year after year to the next name on the list.

Over the past few months, county council has taken some large steps towards improving the way it operates - most notable of which was the move to eliminate its private Management Committee. We encourage council to take one more step and add some legitimacy, honour and achievement to the Wardenship.

CHACE Place coming up aces says reader

The following is a copy of a letter sent to Kevin Morris, a program supervisor at the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

Editor:

I'm writing to you to express my concern about recent funding decreases for C.H.A.C.E. (County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment).

CHACE Place Minden and Chace Place Haliburton, as well as Chace day-cares, all provide essential services to a great many children and parents of our county.

You have to live in a sprawled out rural community like Haliburton County to understand the isolation that most parents at home with small children feel. This is what makes CHACE's role so vital here: CHACE connects moms and kids of all social, educational and economic backgrounds so they can mutually enrich each other's lives; CHACE, in some cases, prevents hopelessness and depression from setting in, with all their attendant social and health problems.

This may or may not be the case in cities, but not in a community like Haliburton County, an agency such as CHACE is not an "extra" but a truly essential service. As essential as solid education, proper health care and good law enforcement.

Indeed, over the past several years, CHACE has become a highly valued and deeply respected "institution" in our community. I therefore strongly urge you and your colleagues to keep funding CHACE to the appropriate level it, and our community, deserves.

Respectfully,

Dr. Rene A. Benoit

Editor:

Re. your editorial of November 9.

If you believe that our politicians give a damn about the people of Haliburton County, you are living in a dream world. Why don't they care? Very simple - not enough votes!

I am very sure that Bill Scott doesn't care - why doesn't he care? Very simple. He is very well cared for by the taxpayers.

Mr. Scott has been a joke for years! The ridiculous part of all this, if Mr. Scott decides to run in the next election we, the voters, will re-elect him. As for Mr. Drainville and his marvelous provincial government, they too live in their own special fantasy land.

The bottom line, we have what we deserve, an M.P. who has become a fat cat, one who can retire with a pension that will represent four times more than the average citizen of Haliburton County can hope to earn. Assuming they are fortunate enough to have any kind of employment.

Mr. Drainville, thank God, is history. If we don't get rid of him, his party probably will. Will Mr. Drainville deal with economic issues? No he won't!

Why? Very simple. He doesn't know how!

Sad isn't it?

We're doing our best says Minden Hydro

Editor:

Your November 16 editorial entitled "More than a nuisance" highlights our growing dependence on reliable supply of electricity for everyday needs. The storm of November 12-13 tested both people's ability to cope with the loss of this essential service and our ability to restore that service.

It would, however, be a mistake to think that the only solution to this problem would be the cutting of any trees likely to fall on our power lines. During the same storm, massive steel towers and poles in other parts of the Province were toppled due to the high winds. Wide open spaces provide no guarantee of continuous service.

Many of the people who make Haliburton County their home or vacation destination do so because of the natural beauty of the Highlands. We accept our responsibility to preserve this natural environment and work with property owners to gain concurrence for the removal of danger trees. Only trees identified as a danger to our lines, by our trained Foresters, are marked for removal. To remove healthy trees that are not dangerously close to our lines would negate our environmental responsibilities.

Our power distribution system evolved along with development of the area. The lines follow shorelines, cottage roads, cross lakes and rivers, all of which contribute to the problems associated with finding and providing access to repair the damage.

We are working with local property owners to improve our forestry program notification process. As we respond to the concerns of property owners we can ensure that the need for reliable service is balanced with our shared concern for the environment.

John R. Lane, Manager
Minden Area.

Sidewalks not cleared after snowfall

The following letter was sent to Minden Council.

Dear Council:

Minden is a beautiful place to live. We see many improvements each year to keep it beautiful and make it more beautiful. Thanks to our council and their concern, interest and ability.

We have one small problem.

When it snows, we have quite a large area of uncleared streets. This causes hardship for senior citizens, young mothers with children and others whose recreation is walking or who need to walk several times a week to keep up their strength and interest in living.

We like to shop and dine in downtown Minden but we do not enjoy walking amidst the traffic on the road.

A little clearing off the snow and sanding of the streets at the right time will solve the problem.

We believe that if you employ your abilities to this problem, everyone in Minden will benefit and our Minden will continue to be the delight of many hearts.

We thank you for your kind consideration in this matter and look forward to hearing from you regarding this detail of your responsibility as our elected body of authority.

Sincerely, in the interest of Minden beauty and development.

Hydro gets praise for its work

Editor:

I would like to applaud the employees of Ontario Hydro for their diligence in returning things to normal after the severe storm on November 12 and 13.

I had an opportunity to see how cold and wet they were restoring the system. We appreciate their efforts.

Magazine for cons is the last straw

Why doesn't somebody invent a birth control pill for magazines?

Have you been past a magazine stand lately? No wonder our forests are threatened. We've got magazines for women and magazines for men and magazines for children. We also have magazines for left-handed hunters, near-sighted car mechanics, pansexual computer nerds, overweight home repair persons and club-footed skateboarders whose middle initial is "W."

We have so many different magazines these days it's a challenge to imagine a title for a new one. An American humourist by the name of Robert Byrne gave it a shot a couple of years ago. He came up with:

Gimme! The Magazine of Money

Poor Housekeeping (ten times the circulation of Good Housekeeping.)

And my favourite — The Shining (formerly Bald World).

I guess there are a few magazine possibilities still floating around. Now that Dan Quayle's got a little more time on his hands he might go into publishing. He could sign up Millie, the ex-White House mutt as a consultant for his first magazine venture — a yearly magazine for dogs.

He could call it Daniel's Annual Spaniel Manual.

But kidding aside, there is a new magazine out there

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

that not even Robert Byrne could have dreamed up.

It's called Prison Life.

It's strictly for folks who are involuntary guests of the U.S. penitentiary system.

Sounds like another joke, until you think about the numbers. There are more than a million convicts in state and federal prisons across America. There are another 3 million on probation or parole. What's more, the numbers are expanding because criminals are a growth industry. The U.S. prison roll call jumps by about seven percent each year.

So what kind of articles would you find in Prison Life? Well, what sort of things would you want to read about if you were doing seven-to-ten? There's a regular column called "The Chaplain Speaks" and another called "Ask The Law Professor". There's even a feature entitled "In-Cell Cooking".

Not that Prison Life is just a kind of Chatelaine with stripes. Its first issue featured America's least-favourite Lifer on the cover under a headline that read: CHARLIE MANSON: GET OFF HIS BACK!

Then too, there's the Prison Life centrefold — a fetching young thing in a wisp of a bikini smiling back at the reader. This is the Cellmate of the Month — and since there are several hundred thousand women in the slammer, the Cellmate comes in both male and female varieties.

But the factor that makes or breaks a magazine is the advertising it can attract — and who's going to advertise in a magazine for felons?

Well, true — you won't find many Chase-Manhattan or Yale Lock ads in Prison Life, but you'd be surprised who has lined up to buy space. There's a full-page spread for health food supplements (a lot of cons get into weight lifting and body-building). There's even an ad paid for by Island Records flogging a new Tom Waits album.

When you think of it, a magazine for convicts isn't a dumb idea at all. Prisoners just may be the last untapped consumer market on the continent.

And unlike the old days, the new cons have lots of pocket money. In the U.S. they can earn up to $2,000 a year. Doesn't sound like much, but don't forget — food, board and the company uniforms are supplied free of charge.

Plus, inmates have one precious freedom when it comes to magazines that you and I will never know.

Plenty of time to read the damn things.

Letters to the editor

Bill 40 a major piece of 'baffle-gab'

Editor:

This is a personal campaign against Bill 40 and Dennis Drainville in regards to his column of November 16.

I can not expect to get through to a died-in-the-wool mystic like Drainville. His type never let reality interfere with their noble whip-wielding plans for the good of all of us.

I haven't the stomach of a med school student. Therefore, I cannot dissect Drainville's every intent.

Bill 40 started its sorry life in Quebec. It was just one more nail in the coffin of freedom. Quebec has a sorry dwindling economy, as it should. Quebec policy consistently eliminates everyone's free choice. From language laws jammed down everyone's throat to paying for heritage-glorifying schemes that tax the hell out of their populous so that their standard of living goes down as all prices go up.

Bill 40 is a major piece of baffle-gab which translates into:

1) the criminal actions of goon squads at picket lines is caused by the people who need jobs that risk their lives to get work;

2) to eliminate this violence we will make the people who want the work co-criminals with the owners of the business;

3) justify the change in law because there are more workers in the service sector and more part time workers;

4) get the fem gang involved because of the higher female population now has to work.

A law that is good does not need to change because people change jobs or a higher percentage of families need a second income. I hope the good folks of Haliburton do not re-elect Drainville. I personally would like to see him as a missionary in the former Soviet Union, where he belongs.

Jim Battarbee,

Reconsidering county's tax burden

The following letter was sent to Hugh Mackenzie of the Fair Tax Commission.

Dear Mr. Mackenzie,

I am a permanent resident of Minden Township in the County of Haliburton and my complaint has more to do with provincial subsidies paid to local municipalities and boards of education, but certainly has a direct effect on the level of municipal taxation.

My understanding is that provincial subsidies are formulated on the local tax base and because the County of Haliburton has over 600 lakes and a great number of summer cottages, we are considered to be a wealthy area and have been subject to reductions in provincial subsidies over the years.

I believe that the formula for establishing provincial subsidies is flawed, and penalizes Haliburton County on the erroneous assumption that the owners of all this real estate are resident on a 12-month basis, supporting local businesses, artisans and workers in general. This of course is not the case. We are lucky if we receive monetary benefits from half of our "tax base" for more than two full months per year.

With the level of unemployment in this county at 30 per cent and in danger of approaching 40 or 50 per cent this winter, it would seem to me that the time is long past due for another look at the way in which provincial subsidies to boards of education and municipalities in "tourist areas" are calculated.

Township office repairs near completion

The following items were addressed at the November 19 meeting of Lutterworth Township Council:

Moving Day

Repairs and renovations to the township office are gradually nearing completion and municipal staff are hoping to move in some time this week.

Since a fire damaged the Highway 35 building a few months ago, staff have been working out of trailers. Councillor Maurice Boyd reported that repairs are a bit behind schedule but the office should be mostly ready by the end of the week.

Council agreed that if all the work is not done, they are willing to rent the trailers for another month.

Council, however, was not unanimous on a motion to forego the tendering process for an addition to the building. Councillor Lisa Mercer and Reeve Cam Ecclestone voted against a resolution that allows the township's insurance company to select a construction firm to build an addition to the building.

The addition is being done in lieu of repairing some of the damage. The feeling of the insurance adjuster is that there is no time for tendering process, since construction of the block walls can be done more efficiently before freezing weather.

The resolution was carried by a vote of 3-2.

Road Improvements?

Lutterworth residents may be getting a message in their tax bills advising that landscape work on township road allowances will not be allowed.

Landscape work along township roadways can sometimes cause problems for the road maintenance workers. Noting that there are at least nine examples of landscape work along Sandy Bay Road, Councillor Bill Valentine agreed that a notice might be in order. He said people are planting hedges and placing boulders on the township property. The matter will be addressed again at the next council meeting.

Road Show

It looks as though County Council will be "taking the show on the road" Reeve Ecclestone reported to Lutterworth Council.

Commenting on events from last Wednesday's county council meeting, Ecclestone said councillors seem to be in favour of rotating their council meetings among the 10 municipalities.

Traditionally county council has met at the county offices in Minden. However, the council chambers have now been vacated to make room for the social services department. Last Wednesday's meeting was held at Hyland Crest. Lutterworth Councillor Lisa Mercer said rotating meeting will result in waste through travel time for the county staff. She also noted that meetings outside of Minden will limit the access to files.

Deputy Reeve Jim McMahon said he has told Warden George Simmons that he is opposed to the rotation. "They're calling it 'let's take the show on the road'. Once it's on the road it will stay there... at least until it hits Haliburton."

Reeve Cam Ecclestone said he disagrees with McMahon's feelings. He also said the matter has not yet been settled.

Board of education receives $350,000 provincial grant

Haliburton County's Board of Education will receive over $350,000 in provincial money to help ease the pain of junior kindergarten programs.

The money is earmarked for J.D. Hodgson and Archie Stouffer Elementary Schools and is part of $30.9 million allocated by the ministry of education for junior kindergarten.

The funds are part of $176.1 million grants for the 1992 capital program to school boards in Central Ontario announced by education minister Tony Silipo last Friday. The two other areas receiving funding are $116.5 million for growth projects and $28.6 million for non-growth projects.

The funds for growth projects is aimed at construction of new facilities due to increased student enrolment. Money for non-growth project is aimed at renovations and additions to existing facilities. Haliburton's board will not receive any money for those two areas.

Victoria County will receive nearly $3.1 million in provincial grants, all of which will be spent on an addition to I.E. Weldon Secondary School in Lindsay.

Haliburton Village will soon be numbered

by Andy Holloway

The following brief items were discussed by Dysart et al council last Monday.

Smoking by-law

A draft of the proposed by-law to ban smoking from the lobby of Dysart's arena was passed on to the recreation committee for comments and recommendations. The move to shunt the proposed by-law over to the recreation committee was suggested by Reeve Chris Hodgson.

"I still think it's a great idea, but we should do it right," said Hodgson.

Until the by-law is passed by council, smoking will continue to be allowed in the lobby. The proposal is a reaction to a complaint from Brenda Cooper who in a letter to council stated the smoke is harmful to the children who use the arena.

Hospital hopes

A resolution from Minden against reduction of services or closure of the Minden Hospital received support from Dysart councillors. However, an additional sentence was attached to the original resolution stating there is a "prudent need for the hospital facilities" in both Minden and Haliburton.

However, The need for such a resolution baffled at least one councillor.

"I think it's right that they shouldn't close the hospital, but it seems to me St. Joseph's has already indicated that it's not going to close it so I don't know why this has come," said Lloyd Leadbeater.

Reeve Chris Hodgson, who also sits on the Planning and Development Committee, said the Ministry of Health has told the St. Joseph's administrators not to close the hospital.

Numbering

Following Minden's lead, council approved a Rotary plan to number all of the buildings in Haliburton. The numbers will be put on the assessment rolls, but will not displace any of the information currently listed.

Minden council approved a numbering six months ago and the results have been less than successful. The majority of people have still not numbered their buildings. The numbering system was put in place to allow emergency crews to find places quicker.

Road grades

The roads in Dysart and its surrounding townships received good grades from the Ministry of Transportation.

In the MTO report, Road System Adequacies Statistics, Dysart was reported to be at 66 per cent of what it should be at. While that figure does not sound high, it placed Dysart in the middle of the pack in its area classification of urban-rural. Clerk Donna McCallum told councillors that some areas were down to the 30 per cent level.

Old fashioned X-mas

Anyone who checks out the Victorian Christmas event in Haliburton this year should bring their skates along. At the request of the event's organizers, council approved a skating rink to be created at Glebe Park where the event is centered. The only concern councillors had was where to put the rink. Councillor Brian Watts said there are ski trails through the area which should not be interfered with, but clerk Donna McCallum told councillors the rink will be located just inside the gates, which will be locked to prevent cars from entering.

No expansion

The Business Improvement Area (BIA) will not be expanding this year said councillor Laurie Bonfield. "There won't be any expansion until the next BIA budget meeting."

Bonfield was responding to a letter from Whitfield Plumbing and Heating's owner Adrian Whitfield who asked that the BIA not expand its territory to include his store. However, Bonfield said, "Every year they'll be offered it and every year they can turn it down."

Free parking

At least one Christmas tradition will continue this year as Dysart council is giving free parking for downtown shoppers in Haliburton. Parking meters will not be monitored during the month of December to encourage people to shop in the village. Minden offers free parking throughout the year.

Dorset police station rises from the ashes

by Andy Holloway

A new Dorset community police office is seeing the light of day and should be ready for use in a few weeks.

Five months after the area's first office burned to the ground, construction of a new building is taking place on the same site, located across from the community centre.

Since the fire, Ontario Provincial Police have been working out of the Sherborne municipal office.

Oxtongue Lake Construction, a local contractor, has been hired to build the new office.

The original office was an old rink shack which was upgraded using volunteer labour and materials and cost just $6,000. It was set on fire on May 24 leaving just the frame standing and causing $30,000 worth of damage. The building had only been open for one week.

The Ontario Fire Marshal was called in to investigate the blaze and arson was determined to be the cause. Insurance payments will cover the cost of the new building.

The police station was part of a provincial program to increase police visibility in small communities. Minden received its police office under the plan two years ago.

Grant will fund pocket cards for Highlands women

The Haliburton County Committee Against the Abuse of Women is among the 100 groups to share in the provincial funding aimed at preventing wife assault.

The committee has been awarded a grant from the Ontario Women's Directorate to provide pocket cards that list emergency support and advocacy services for rural women. The Women's Directorate is providing $200,000 to 114 groups for public education projects during November, which is Wife Assault Prevention Month.

"Wife Assault Prevention Month is intended to convince people that this crime has no place in our society," said Marion Boyd, Minister for Women's Issues. "We rely on our partnerships with women's groups to help deliver that message directly to their home communities. Because they're sensitive to local needs, these groups are in an excellent position to mobilize opinions and send out powerful and effective messages against wife assault."

Among other projects, groups will be using their grants to conduct poster campaigns, hold workshops for developmentally disabled women and their families, produce plays and distribute place mats and coasters with information on local services for assaulted women.

The grants are one component of Wife Assault Prevention Month, a province-wide campaign. Throughout this month, the Directorate will also be placing advertising messages with information on wife assault.

Despite owing the municipality over $16,000 Haliburton's Nordic Ski Trails Association received some more conditional gifts from Dysart Council last Monday.

The association asked for and received the use of the municipality's bulldozer for three days and received permission to erect lighting along part of its trails in Glebe Park and to erect two large signs.

However, first the association has to present a payment plan to Dysart covering about $16,600 in debts to the municipality. Four years ago, the association received a $20,000 grant from Dysart and paid off $2,000 in each of the first two succeeding years. Since then, no payments have been received.

"We're not the bank," said Reeve Chris Hodgson, "But we want to support the community so that's the catch we're in."

John Teljeur said his association wants to pay off its debts, but that there is a lack of available funds.

"We want to improve our trails, but we can't if we keep running into road blocks. You have to understand there's not a lot of money kicking around in our system," said Teljeur.

The association is a limited company incorporated as non-profit. All funds made during the ski season are put back into maintaining and improving the trail system said Teljeur. Currently, the association controls about 120 kilometers of cross-country ski trails.

Right now, there is a group of six people widening the six kilometer trail through Glebe Park. However, a bulldozer is needed to level it once the initial work is done. Deputy-Reeve Curry Bishop said it is probably too late for the bulldozer to be of any use since there is a lot of water sitting on the ground.

Light control

As well as widening the trail, the association asked for permission to put in lights along the trail to create a night skiing course. Teljeur said there is a shortage of places where people can ski at night on lighted trails in the province. The association will pay for all of the costs associated with putting up the lights and will pay the hydro bills. Teljeur also said the association would allow others to use the lights on a user fee system.

Hodgson said since the lights are on township property the township should have the key to the junction box and give other groups permission to use the lights. The Haliburton Legion might be one group who would want to use the lights during the annual Bluegrass Festival.

There was some concern expressed by councillors that the association would not be able to pay the bills for putting up the lights or for the hydro.

"We're looking at operating the lights only between 4:30 and 8 p.m. so that's only about four hours. We estimated the cost of using the lights would be around four or five dollars," said Teljeur.

As for erecting the lights, Teljeur said Bell Canada might donate the poles, but that some work might have to be contracted out. The lights used will be 150 watt mercury vapour bulbs, the same kind in place in Glebe Park now.

Council also gave permission for the association to put its own signs on two Glebe Park signs to help notify people that there is trail system in the area.

Traffic jam: Action was heavy and furious around the Haliburton Redmen goalie Todd McCracken's net last Wednesday. McCracken kept the Redmen in the game until their third period comeback.

Greenfield caps comeback

Haliburton Redmen storm back with three straight goals in the third period to edge Fenelon Falls 4-3

by Andy Holloway

Chris Greenfield will never get extra points for his paddling abilities, but he came up big when the Haliburton Highlands Redmen needed him last Wednesday against the Fenelon Falls Falcons.

Greenfield scored the game winner with less than five minutes left in the game to give the Redmen a 4-3 victory. After the goal, Greenfield did a bit of show-boating by sliding down the centre of the ice on his rear end paddling his stick frantically.

The goal capped a third period comeback by the Redmen who scored three unanswered goals. Greenfield stole the puck from a Falcon defender inside Fenelon's blueline and quickly released a shot which had just enough steam to trickle into the net. Greenfield also displayed a bit of tough leadership when he told a fellow Redmen to shut up after that player was mouthing off to the ref after receiving a penalty late in the game.

Despite the victory, the game could be divided into two sections. For the first two periods, the Redmen looked disorganized at best and lackadaisical at worst. Most of the Redmen's energy seemed to go into trying to deposit Falcons' players onto the ice. It kept the 100 fans entertained, but didn't help on the scoreboard. The Falcons had a number of opportunities in the first period to score, but Redmen goalie Todd McCracken stopped all of them. McCracken was perhaps the star of the game for the Redmen as he kept the score close through the first two periods.

However, the scoreless game was broken seconds into the second period when the Falcons scored on a power-play, courtesy of an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty to Jeff Black. Tim Kehoe took a pass from the corner and blasted a good hard low shot past McCracken.

A few minutes later the Redmen tied it up, also on a power-play. From a face-off deep in Falcons territory, Mike Billings took a pass from Greg Stamp and drilled a slap-shot from the point past a screened Falcon goalie. Jonathon Bishop won the crucial face-off and also received an assist on the play.

The tie was short-lived, however, as Falcon Casey Mitchell scored on a rebound after a great save by McCracken. Mitchell scored again two minutes later to give the Falcons a commanding 3-1 lead going into the third period.

With the Falcons short two men early in the third, Derek Glendinning scored with assists going to Andy Billings and Mark Stamp.

Midway through the period, Gordie Shaw drilled a shot from the slot to tie the game up for the Redmen setting the stage for Greenfield's marker.

The win was the Redmen's third in a row and second of the week. Last Tuesday the team paid a visit to Campbellford and came away with a 6-3 victory.

Scoring for the Redmen were Chris Bradford, Greg Stamp, Darren Johnston, Derek Wilson and Mark Stamp with a pair. Coach Ron Yake said Redmen goalie Pete Brohman kept the team in the game during the first period until the Redmen offence got it going. Yake also singled out John Bishop as having played a good game on offence while Jeff Black and Mike Billings were strong on defence.

The Redmen pay a return visit to Lindsay Collegiate on Monday before returning home on Wednesday to face Norwood District High at 7:30 p.m. In the first game of the season last week, the Redmen beat the LCVI Spartans 6-4.

Ingram scores four to lead rout of Sid Stamp

Home Hardware remained the only undefeated team in Minden Men's Recreational League hockey after a 3-3 tie with Westside last Monday night.

Doug Rae had a goal and two assists to help increase Home's unbeaten string to three games. The team has one win and two ties so far which was good enough for a temporary hold on first place.

Home also received goals from Ron May assisted by Rae, and Jeff Howe assisted by Rae and Tim Hunter.

Early in the game, Westside staked themselves to a two goal lead on goals by Rick Anderson, with an assist to Craig Crowe, and Joachim Matysek who scored an unassisted goal.

However, that lead was wiped out by two consecutive goals by Home later in the period. Home scored again in the second period to take a 3-2 lead, but Craig Crowe with an assist from Doug Schell evened up the game for good.

Westside's tie gave them three points for the season.

In the night's second match, Hartwick Construction scored four unanswered goals to beat The Times 4-3.

The Times started out strongly scoring three consecutive goals in the first period. Eldon Bull, with assists to Dave McKay and Doug Allison, scored the game's first goal for The Times. Scott Gartshore and Dennis McKee also scored and things were looking good for The Times squad to win their second game of the year. Allison and Dave Rogers assisted on Gartshore's goal while Jeff Hunter assisted on McKee's goal.

Before the end of the first period, The Times lead was cut to one goal as Andy Campbell and Gary Harrison potted goals for Hartwick. Greg Newell and Ben Manuge assisted on Campbell's goal while Glen Hall and Paul Walker received assists on Harrison's marker.

Hartwick scored two more times in the second to ice their second win of the season while The Times dropped their second game. Paul Walker scored unassisted to tie the game up and Ben Manuge, assisted by John Teljeur, scored the game's winning goal.

The game was a rough and tumble affair with several penalties handed out to both sides, including four roughing penalties. With the win, Hartwick moved into first place.

The last game of the night was a romp as KDD blew out Sid Stamp Fuels 8-2 and grabbed a share of second place with Home.

Ivan Ingram with four goals, including a natural hat trick in the first period, and an assist and Jeff Stamp with three goals and four assists led the way for KDD. Andy McKenzie pitched in with a goal and an assist.

Sid Stamp scored the game's first goal when Scott Hamilton assisted by Tom Miscio and Brian Shaw scored early in the first period. However, McKenzie and then Ingram, with the first three of his four goals, gave KDD a solid 4-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Brian Shaw potted one to start the second period, with assists to Hamilton and Jeff Campbell, and help Sid Stamp climb within two, but a natural hat trick by Stamp and the fourth goal by Ingram put the game away. The win was Sid Stamp's second in a row after an opening week loss to Hartwick.

Scott Murrison also received an assist for KDD.

Future games: November 23: Home vs. Stamp @ 8 p.m., The Times vs. KDD @ 9 p.m., Westside vs. Hartwick @ 10 p.m.

Novice B Monarchs pound Fenelon Falls 5-2

Game of the week

Pee Wee B: Minden vs. Keene

Ashley Walker foils another scoring opportunity by Keene during action on November 15. Walker allowed just two goals, but his mates were shut out.

There was great excitement in Fenelon Falls on November 12 as the Novice B Minden Monarchs rebounded from a 2-1 second period deficit to win 5-2.

The Monarchs took an early lead when Nicholas Mitchell scored with assists going to Andy Kinsman and Graham Neave. Fenelon scored the next two goals to take a 2-1 lead going into the third period.

Kinsman tied the game up seconds into the third period with assists going to Mitchell and Jonathan Horsley. The Monarchs scored again soon after when Kinsman tucked one under the Fenelon goalie for his second goal of the game. Horsley and Mitchell assisted on the goal and the Monarchs had the lead.

The Monarchs then added two insurance goals. Neave scored on a hard shot with assist to Kinsman and Justin Walker and then Kinsman completed a natural hat trick with his third goal of the period and fifth point of the game.

Pee Wee B

The Tri-County pee wees took on Keene on Sunday, November 15, but came up on the short end of a 2-0 score.

Both teams played an excellent game with lots of end-to-end rushes. Minden forwards had many chances around the Keene's net, but failed to connect.

Ashley Walker in the Minden net made numerous spectacular saves to keep the game close for the Monarchs.

Last Saturday at the Minden Arena, the Monarchs beat their cross-county rivals, the Haliburton Huskies 4-1.

Ashley Walker held the Huskies scoreless until the final minute of the game. Shane Studholme broke the shut-out bid during a power-play and with the Huskies' goalie pulled in favour of an extra attacker.

The Monarchs started the game off well when George Godfrey scored in the first period.

Chris Kerr scored the only goal of the second period and the Monarchs were up 2-0 to start the third period.

Philip Daniels and Jason Kasupchuk finished off the scoring for the Monarchs with goals in the third period.

Pleasure skating not too much fun

No one ever said skating was a singular experience, but the crowd at the Minden Arena on Sundays turns skating into more of an exercise in avoidance than anything else.

Upwards of 200 people come every Sunday afternoon between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. to enjoy a free public skate at the arena. This, in itself is a great idea. What isn't so great about it is the number of people who show up. It's almost as bad as New Year's Eve at Nathan Phillips Square in Toronto.

Little kids learn to skate by learning the hard way - gravity always pulls you down onto the ice with a hard thump. Slightly bigger kids speed around the ice, crisscrossing the surface in their shiny new skates, without the faintest idea of where other people are. Slowly moving teenagers congregate in the weirdest of places, usually wherever you happen to be skating past, checking out the action with an I'm-so-bleeding-cool glance. And adults slowly circle the ice trying to round up their kids and avoid slicing the fingers of other kids who have discovered that sliding on ice is more fun than skating on it.

Before I lose myself in a sea of old-man crabbiness about 40 years too early, it should be noted that this is not a gripe about the younger, or older, generations. The problem lies with the lack of activities in this county in general.

Admittedly, there really isn't a whole lot to do on a Sunday in the county.

It's too early to go skiing, our November snowstorm notwithstanding, and while some snowmobiling is happening it's a bit early for that as well.

So it stands to reason people will flock to a free event to pass the time away and get some badly needed exercise after a week of sitting at a desk or at work.

Skating should also provide a chance to clear the mind by allowing one to think without the distractions of home or work. Thoughts like, "Geez, I sure drink a lot of coffee. I wonder if I should cut down," or, "Does spray-on hair really work and if it rained would my shirts get discoloured?" or, "My essay on the effects of jam on old toast is due tomorrow and I haven't started yet," should not be legally allowed to enter anyone's head.

Instead, you end up spending more time trying to avoid running into other people than that time you forgot your Mom's birthday and she blabbed to everyone in the known universe about what a cad you were.

The solution seems simple - create more free ice time and set aside certain times for different groups of skaters.

Unfortunately the reality of the situation is not that easy. Is it ever?

Rantin' n' Ravin'

by Andy Holloway

There's only one arena which has to be used by all of the groups in the area. There are not too many free hours left to hold such an event. In addition, the two hours are sponsored by area businesses who are feeling the economic pinch as much as anyone. Who would pay for the extra ice time? The township, i.e. the tax payers? Not likely.

How about taking the centre ice area and creating a little spot where people can learn to skate without the fear of being run over by a careless skater. A few pylons would easily mark off the area. This would also cut down on the people who crisscross the ice without looking.

Then everyone can enjoy a pleasant skate without feeling cramped and crowded in the country.

Also noticed last Sunday was the number of children without helmets. Some kids were wearing them indicating a few responsible parents were out there, but many more were not. Get those helmets on, if you don't have one buy one.

Stanhope's dumps pass ministry's site inspections

by Andy Holloway

Stanhope received positive reports about its three landfill sites from the Ministry of the Environment.

"It's a good bill of health," said Reeve Fred Gardner about the reports which show that Stanhope is keeping its sites in accordance to its certificate of approval from the ministry.

The MOE studied all three sites in late September, but council did not receive their report until its meeting on Wednesday, November 11.

At the Maple Lake site, the MOE reported that the dump was being operated in accordance with the township's approval certificate.

However, the ministry made a number of suggestions which, council was told, have all been completed. One of the problems was that there was uncovered garbage in parts of the dump that were no longer used. That has been corrected as has a narrowing of the "face" of the dump.

The ministry also suggested that a program monitoring the impact of the dump be done.

The Pine Springs landfill site was being well-maintained. The MOE said the dump's hours of operations should be posted at the entrance to the site and that the boundary should be clearly marked. As well, a study should be done to determine the amount of leaching occurring at the site.

The Hawk Lake site was also reported to be operating properly. The MOE also did the initial sampling of wells at the dump, as per their agreement with the township, and results are expected soon. The township will have to do further sampling in the future at a cost of about $5,000 per sample.

However, markers pointing out where some of the wells are have disappeared. Council was told that one has been covered over accidentally and that others may have been broken off last winter by snowmobilers who use the snowmobile trail that winds its way around the back of the dump site. Council may consider moving the trail to not only protect the markers, but also to improve the snowmobilers' view.

Council is also considering implementing an operating plan for all of the dump sites next year if money can be found in the budget.

Laxton township holds contest to create logo

by Jerry Grozelle

The United Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford need a crest to be identified by. To that end, the Council of the three townships has decided to hold a contest to produce a municipal logo.

The only criteria that must be followed is the inclusion of the names of the three townships and the phrase "The Land Between."

All taxpayers and residents of Laxton, Digby and Longford are eligible to participate and Deputy-Reeve Mike Riordon stressed at a recent council meeting that children should be encouraged to participate.

Entries should be done in colour on an 8 1/2 by 11 sheet of plain white paper. Participants should be aware of the fact the design must be suitable for pins, letterhead and crests, so the logo must be kept simple.

Deadline for the logo contest is April 1, 1993. The winning entry will be chosen after that time by LDL council and Township staff.

The logo will be unveiled at the grand opening of the new Municipal Building some time during the summer of 1993.

Information regarding the contest will be distributed with the 1993 tax bills.

Curling: 'The roaring game'

New delivery and sweeping techniques have helped to produce better curlers, but nothing has had as much impact on the game as the science of ice making. Above, Tim O'Sullivan stares toward the broom as he releases the stone. Top, Paul Prentice hugs the ice in a low sliding delivery.

The evolution of ice

Forty pounds of polished granite roars like a locomotive across the finely pebbled ice. A thunderous crash echoes throughout the metal-clad building as the stone's inertia spills through one, two, maybe three matching weights.

Commotion fills the rings. Feet dodge the granite missiles. Brooms flail the ice, straining to keep the momentum alive. One more inch, the brooms pound. One . . . more . . . inch.

And then silence.

A curling rink is almost 200 feet long and the target is 12 feet wide. Yet, anyone who has ever thrown a rock knows this is a game of fractions. More often than not, the difference between winning and losing an end is measured in inches.

Today's curling is as much a science as a sport. Modern curlers come equipped with stop watches to "time the ice". The old corn brooms have been abandoned by all but a few die-hards. And the "slide" delivery allows curlers to travel a good distance up the ice before finally releasing their grip on the rock. The world's top curlers have become so proficient at the sport that new rules are being introduced to make it more difficult for them and interesting for spectators.

Of all the innovations in this sport, though, nothing has had as much impact on the game as the improvements to the ice surface itself. Modern techniques and equipment have eliminated the ridges and hollows that once brought premature grey to the crowns of unlucky curlers.

In the days when natural ice was the norm, curlers could use the humps and valleys as guards to hide their stones. A good ridge in the ice could be aggravatingly effective as a guard, since it took a shrewd skip to understand how to play around or over it.

Last week, several of the former presidents of the Minden Curling Club were sitting around a table, swapping stories about the old days. The best of the stories all seemed to hinge on the crazy characteristic of the ice in the old clubs. Ridges, valleys, even puddles and fog provided challenges that new curlers will likely never experience.

Jack "J.O." Jackson was one of the men sitting at the table. He knows better than most how the improvements to the ice surface have changed the game. As the ice maker for most of the club's history, he's seen first hand all the new techniques that have been employed to make the more consistent, and ultimately easier for curlers to play.

Jackson began curling when Minden built its first arena in 1949. Simply put: "It was not good ice." The natural ice surface lacked the temperature controls that come with today's refrigerated rinks. The arena was also used for hockey and public skating, which provides for less-than-ideal ice conditions for curling. Even though the ice was pebbled before curling, it took great strength to throw the rock from one end to the other. "You just threw your heart out," says Jackson. "I often wondered how the girls were able to do it."

Curlers also had to deal with some interesting little hills and valleys. Since the arena was built on clay ground (it was located near where the municipal building is now located), the ground beneath the ice surface heaved with the frost. Jackson said it was not unusual to have a two to three inch mound near the well from which the water was drawn.

Curling on natural ice posed problems that would baffle most of today's curlers. Only nature controlled the temperature, and occasionally a warm spell would leave puddles on the rink. The return of cold weather meant the puddles would freeze from the top down, ultimately leaving a layer of shale ice for the stones to cackle across.

Nature forced most of Minden's curlers to take a season off after a wet snow storm in 1950 put such a strain on the wooden structure that it caved in. The arena was eventually rebuilt and curling resumed in 1952.

In 1960, the curling club got together with the Agricultural Society in a project to construct a new building at the Fair grounds. A quonset hut was built and the club bought a used refrigeration plant for about $2,000 and by 1962 they were curling on the town's first artificial ice surface.

Even then, the ice was far from perfect. While it kept the ice frozen, Jackson said the refrigeration plant had few controls. It was an improvement on natural ice, but it wasn't as consistent as the ice that curlers are now accustomed to. "It was hit and miss," said Jackson. "None of us understood ice making all that well and we didn't have the controls."

There's a lot more to making good ice than just flooding and freezing. Temperature control is crucial. For instance, the air temperature can't be far below freezing when you flood the rink or it will freeze from the top down, again leaving shale ice. For optimum curling, Jackson says the ice should be maintained at about 25 F. Five feet above the ice surface, the temperature should be between 28 F and 32 F.

Jackson says you get the fastest ice when it is bordering on melting. When everything is perfect, it will take about 25 seconds to draw a rock from T-line to T-line (this is what the curlers with their stop watches are timing).

In 1981 the new curling club opened at its present location next to the Community Centre, and over the years the ice has steadily improved. And although the ice is always improving, curlers continue to pull their hair whenever a rock takes a funny path through an imperceptible groove.

MNR says no to wolf bounty

Minister Bud Wildman says Fish and Game Act does not permit bounties on any wildlife

by Jerry Grozelle

Increasing incidents of livestock predation by wolves and coyotes has prompted many municipalities to petition the Ministry of Natural Resources to reinstate a bounty on these predators.

The United Townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford sent a letter to the MNR in September endorsing the Township of Mara's plea for a return of bounties on wolves and coyotes.

The MNR has responded with a letter from Natural Resources Minister Bud Wildman stating: "The Fish and Game Act does not permit the payment of bounties for wildlife species."

The correspondence from Wildman's office stated that predators are an integral part of the ecosystem and control programs should be directed at specific problem animals rather than the species in general.

The bounty system on predators was discontinued in 1972 by the MNR although some municipalities continued to pay bounties on wolves and coyotes until 1991 when they were requested to stop such practices by the Ministry.

Government biologists have determined that bounties on predators were ineffective in curbing predation on livestock. The specific problem animals were seldom the ones that bounty money was being paid for. Often, the depredation is caused by a single animal or small group, usually a female with a litter of pups. Removal of those specific animals often ends the problem of predators killing livestock in an area.

"It has been shown conclusively that broad eradication programs such as bounties are not an effective biological means of control," said Maria de Almeida, large predator biologist with the Wildlife Policy Branch of the MNR, in an article in The Ontario Sheep News.

A copy of the article accompanied Wildman's letter.

There are a couple of programs available whereby the MNR may assist a farmer to eliminate predators that are killing livestock. One method is to have a predator control specialist work with the farmer. In a case where coyotes or wolves have been identified as the cause of livestock losses, a ministry specialist may set traps for specific problem predators, usually in the area of a kill site. Once the traps are set, the farmer is instructed on how to check the traps on a daily basis and reset them if necessary.

Another way, which requires more paperwork and the involvement of the MNR and governing municipality, is for the farmer to sign an agreement whereby the municipality will pay for the removal of coyotes or wolves by a designated trapper or hunter. In this case, payment is made for animals taken from a specific property or adjacent properties over a specified time period.

In either of the above methods, specific problem animals are targeted for removal. Predator control will only be carried out in areas where domestic livestock is being killed, not in the case of deer predation.

Stan Flemming, Haliburton Highlands Area Supervisor with the MNR said that he has had three calls from evaluators in the northern part of Victoria County (all involving coyotes killing calves) since early last summer and none from Haliburton.

He pointed out that the payment of bounties has been illegal for many years. Recent public pressure to enforce the MNR policies outlawing bounties on wolves and coyotes resulted in directives to those municipalities that were paying bounties to discontinue the practice.

Flemming agrees that a bounty system is not the way to deal with problem animals.

"There is no closed season on wolves," Flemming said. "Wolves are open season all year. Anyone who has a small game licence can shoot a wolf or coyote."

Coyotes are very adaptable animals. When populations of wildlife prey species such as deer, beaver, woodchucks, rodents, rabbits and others are high, predator species rise accordingly. The relatively mild winters we've experienced over the past several years have contributed to an increase in many of the prey species.

The theory is that even if hunting pressure is increased on coyotes, through the introduction of a bounty, the animal's natural ability to reproduce according to the availability of food within its range will compensate for the increased mortality from additional hunting pressure.

The way the experts see it, the only way to deal with the problem of coyotes and wolves killing livestock is to eliminate the animals that are doing the killing.

Two area lakes receive poor grades

by Andy Holloway

Septic systems on two Haliburton County lakes have received poor bills of health after inspections by the Ministry of the Environment.

The 1991 inspections were part of the continuing cottage pollution program set up by the MOE in the Muskoka-Haliburton area. The program has been running since 1970, but a Haliburton County lake had not been inspected since Kushog and Canning were studied in 1989.

Of the 159 septic systems inspected on Eagle Lake in Guilford Township, 58 have been classified as seriously substandard because they have not been designed, sized or installed correctly. Another 32 systems were malfunctioning and need corrections and further inspections. Just over one-third of the systems inspected on the lake were operating according to MOE regulations.

As an extension of the Eagle Lake survey, Moose Lake was also inspected at the end of August, 1991. Results there were slightly better than at Eagle Lake.

Of the 36 septic systems inspected just 11 were considered seriously substandard while five needed corrections to operate properly. The remaining 20 units were operating properly according to MOE regulations.

MOE spokesman Terry Healey said the results, while poor, were expected.

"I would say the results are representative of what is usually found," said Healey.

Two main effects of pollution from faulty septic systems is that the water has more nutrients and therefore more algae. Increased algae growth uses up more oxygen and so trout and other species dependant on high levels of oxygen die off.

Both Moose and Eagle Lake are moderately enriched according to MOE studies on the level of suspended algae particles. Ministry of Natural Resources records show that trout populations are "under significant stress partly due to the decrease in dissolved oxygen as well as the lack of suitable spawning sites."

Healey says at Eagle Lake there are still eight systems to be corrected while at Moose Lake there are just two outstanding. County-wide there are 12 systems still in need of repair or replacement from previous year's studies.

Preserving the environment

by Andy Holloway

The hunt has been an integral part of the survival of man for a hundred centuries. Man trying to conquer nature. Nature trying to escape man.

One hundred years ago, in stepped five game wardens, or conservation officers, to even up the odds for nature.

While protecting animals from over-eager hunters is a part of the job, conservation officers have come a long way from being just game wardens.

Today, conservation officers, more commonly known as COs, have far more responsibilities than those the first five game wardens had 100 years ago. A more descriptive term for what COs now do might be Environmental Protection Officer, with the environment including humans.

Yes, COs still go out and check up on hunters and fishers, but there are a number of other jobs that fill in the gaps between those two seasons. For example, COs have the legal right to charge snowmobilers who are not wearing helmets or don't have the proper documentation. The same right applies to ticketing those on all-terrain vehicles.

As well, COs do on-site inspections to determine if construction can take place as anyone who tries to build on a shoreline should know. Speeches are given to school children, cottagers and other groups in an attempt to explain the rules and why they're there.

As John Ferguson says there is more to being a CO than just the hunting beat.

"Game warden is a name that is often applied to us, but Conservation Officer is the name that we got in 1948. Some people seem to want to keep the old name," says Ferguson who is a CO working out of the Minden Ministry of Natural Resources office.

Ferguson is explaining how the role of COs has changed, while driving on patrol deep in the crown-owned backlots in Anson Township on the second-last day of this year's deer hunt. One of the key changes has been the switch from policing trappers to checking up on shoreline construction.

"It used to be when we saw what we thought was a poaching truck we would follow it," says Ferguson. "Now when we see a back-hoe we follow it to see where they're going and what they're doing."

The change has also meant that COs have to deal with a different class of people. While those who trap or hunt illegally are called "jerks" by Ferguson and are therefore easy to charge, dealing with the laws that govern shoreline and other natural habitat protection is trickier.

"We're not just dealing with jerks anymore. Most of the time we're dealing with normal people who have strayed. I find it stressful charging someone who could fit into the shoes of any one of my relations."

Ferguson has been a CO for 17 years, six of those working from the Minden office in either of what is now called the Minden area, which is really the southern end of Halibur-

Conservation Officers have spent 100 years in the bush checking up on hunters, but as environmental concerns evolve their jobs are becoming rapidly more diverse

Dave Ferguson has been a Conservation Officer for 17 years and his job has been changing steadily as different concerns have evolved over time.

ton County and parts of Northern Victoria County, or the Haliburton area, the northern half of the county.

Prior to becoming a CO, Ferguson worked for five years with the MNR after graduating from college. During that time he was officially working at a fishery, but he says his goal was to become a CO. To achieve his goal, Ferguson spent long days and nights volunteering to be a deputy CO to gain experience in addition to his regular job at the fishery.

"I would spend two-thirds of the night out with a CO on the night shift, crash for a few hours and then go back to work at the fishery," says Ferguson.

After becoming a CO, Ferguson was posted to the Moosenee office on James Bay. He says the culture shock was huge for a "southern Ontario born and raised" person. Dealing with almost an exclusively native population, Ferguson learned a different way of life. Many of the natives he encountered had been relatively unspoiled by the white man's presence and were still carrying on as their forefathers did.

"I'd have to say those were the best three years of my life. It was a totally different lifestyle, the people there have a frontier-style attitude."

The north also proved to be a ground for the young man to test his abilities and his courage.

"In my time I've walked across thin ice that I shouldn't have, but I made it on successive occasions," says Ferguson. "That gives you a base of what you can do."

After three years, Ferguson decided to leave Moosenee when he became engaged and wanted a house of his own to call home. Up to that point he had been sharing the only MNR house with his co-worker who was also getting married and had first claim on the house.

Being transferred to Elliot Lake presented its own challenges and yet another lifestyle. Elliot Lake has a large Francophone population who, says Ferguson, play by their own rules.

"French-Canadian ethics as it relates to wildlife is different than what the law is. You have to explain why they can't catch too many fish out of the same lake because they didn't know," says Ferguson.

"But it was frustrating in a way because I felt like I was just teaching them how not to get caught, that it was okay to take the fish as long as they didn't get caught doing it."

Ferguson spent eight years in Eliot Lake before the itch to move caught up to him and he landed in Minden.

The job that COs do has continually expanded, but the focus still seems to be on the deer hunt that takes up just two weeks of the year.

"Our job as it relates to deer is the metering out of the deer to ensure a healthy population," says Ferguson. "If you meter out too much you reduce the population. If you meter out too little then nature reduces the population for you."

This year's hunt was a poor one. All of the 20 hunters that Ferguson stopped in the bush were deer-less and had not much luck in even seeing a deer. No doubt, the poor hunt will please some animal lovers, but Ferguson says the end result is the same - a certain number of deer will die every year whether by the gun or by starvation.

"It (a poor hunt) may sound good for the anti-hunters, but what may occur is a lot of wasted deer or agonized mortalities among the deer."

Not only will more deer die from starvation, but does will not give birth to as many fawns so that numbers will drop even more. Some fawns will only give birth to one fawn while others will abort or reabsorb the embryo to conserve energy.

The reasons for the poor hunt are many and varied, but the biggest reason seems to be the lack of hunters. Many hunters have been deterred by the poor weather, but Ferguson says the economy is also keeping them away.

"The weather is bad, but hunters are used to that. The economy is keeping many of the hunters who come up from the city at home because they're in fear of their jobs," says

"If they leave for a week or two people may get one of those pink slips companies seem so fond of handing out these days, 'Merry Christmas, we're going to Georgia and you're not.'"

Fewer hunters means hunting groups have fewer people to construct a trap for the deer to fall into. The deer themselves may also be staying up on higher ranges because of the amount of water there is on the ground.

An hour into the bush and Ferguson finally comes across some hunters who are in the process of leaving. No matter, Ferguson parks in front of them and jumps out of his truck. He checks for hunting licenses and loaded firearms and sees if there are any deer in the back of either of the two trucks, a beat-up red Jimmy and a blue van. There are no deer, the guns are unloaded, but one man does not have his license with him. A quick call to the Minden office confirms the man is registered and he is let go with just a warning although he could have been charged.

Soon after, another set of trucks are stopped and the process repeats. Again everything checks out. Ferguson lays between 30 and 60 charges a year as do most COs in similarly populated areas.

Along the way, Ferguson describes some of the tricks hunters and fishers use when a CO comes along. Some hunters will stick the deer tag through a deer's nose as required, but others will stick it on with tape and then take it off and reuse it. The tags are issued one per customer and that's all the deer a hunter can kill. When caught the excuses fly says Ferguson,

"The tag comes off too easy in the bush," or "I forgot" or "Oh really, I didn't know that." In all cases, the hunter will be charged says Ferguson.

On one occasion when Ferguson was on ice-fishing patrol a fisherman hid the fact that he had two lines, you can only have one in the same place, by sitting on one of them in his hut. Ferguson says the fisherman seemed uncomfortable about his being there and so he stayed and talked to him for awhile. The fisherman finally confessed even though Ferguson had no proof that the guy was doing something wrong.

"Sometimes you can tell that there's something not right and just by talking with the person for awhile and reading him you can find it out or sometimes they'll even tell you."

"For every outlaw there's a new trick," Ferguson points out with a laugh.

Midway through the day, another truck is stopped. This time though, when the truck

"It used to be when we saw what we thought was a poaching truck we would follow it. Now when we see a back-hoe we follow it to see where they're going and what they're doing" -- CO John Ferguson leaves it falls into a ditch. Their truck is pulled out by Ferguson's truck and it gets a flat coming out of the ditch. Ferguson gives one of the hapless hunters a lift to their hunting camp near Hooterville, where else.

"In this line of work you never fail to help someone out because the next time it may be you who needs help," says Ferguson.

Being a CO is like being a police officer with a more specific beat. Like the police, COs go on patrol, arrest people and have to fill out a lot of forms. However, Ferguson says some police officers have told him they would not want to be a CO because during the hunt you are dealing with armed people out to kill all of the time. Ferguson couldn't disagree more.

"First, most hunters are not dangerous, they're good people. And second, I know they're armed which gives me an advantage," says Ferguson.

"I'll start them off by saying 'Good day' or 'How are you today' even if my next words are 'I'm going to have to arrest you for taking moose out of season'. You have to keep things low key."

In any case, looking after deer hunters is just a small part of a CO's job. In the spring, COs make sure people are not fishing during the crucial spawning season of many species of fish. There is also a short bear hunting season which COs must deal with.

During the summer, COs patrol the waterways checking up on fishermen, check shoreline building applications with on-site inspections and follow up on complaints.

The fall is of course, the hunting season for grouse, fowl, moose and deer. In the winter, COs check up on ice fishers by patrolling the lakes on snowmobiles. As well, COs have the authority to charge snowmobilers for some infractions. Ferguson says some COs, himself included, would like to have the authority to charge boaters who do not have life-jackets as they do with snowmobilers and helmets.

"Some people wonder why we deal with that aspect, but they (snowmobilers and boaters) are the people using our natural resources and we're out there more often than the police can be."

While there is one marine patrol unit for the Minden OPP to cover the county, there are four COs says Ferguson and if COs had the same authority more boaters would be caught and, hopefully, public awareness would increase.

All the responsibilities outside of the hunt have been added since 1892 when the first five game wardens made their stamp on Ontario. As Ferguson says, "It's a long way from being a game warden when all we had to do was check hunting and fishing licenses and takes."

Province to improve moose tagging system

The province will move ahead to improve the system for allocating adult moose tags to the tourism industry, Natural Resources Minister Bud Wildman announced.

The ministers committed the province to implementing recommendations in a report released today, entitled "A Review of the Allocation of Adult Moose Validation Tags Within the Tourism Industry".

The report, which focuses on ways to improve key areas of concern in the Tag Share System for moose hunting, was prepared by Cochrane North MPP Len Wood and Muskoka-Georgian Bay MPP Dan Waters.

Wood and Waters conducted the review of the system by examining the comments of tourist outfitters and members of the public who attended open meetings and by analyzing the responses of outfitters to a questionnaire.

"Tourist outfitters and the general public have told us how to improve the tag share system. We look forward to implementing some of those recommendations before the start of the 1993 moose hunting season," Wildman said.

For administrative purposes, the province has been divided into Wildlife Management Units (WMUs). The Tag Share System considers that each WMU has 1,000 shares. Therefore the number of moose tags each outfitter gets is based on the number of shares he or she holds in a WMU.

The "Review of the Allocation of Adult Moose Validation Tags Within the Tourism Industry" contains the following key recommendations:

- The allocation of the moose harvest to the tourism industry should remain at about 10 percent provincially.

- An outfitter should be permitted to permanently transfer shares to any eligible outfitter. Currently, shares can be transferred only to outfitters already in the tag allocation system.

- Procedures and conditions for transfer of shares should be developed as soon as possible by the Ontario Moose Allocation Advisory Committee (OMAAC) in consultations with tourist outfitters. The advisory committee is made up of representatives from the tourism industry and hunters.

- Transfer of adult moose validation tags from one outfitter to another should be disallowed except under exceptional circumstances. Where these tags have not been used by a certain period of time, they should be reclaimed by the advisory committee and allocated to other outfitters.

- Policies and procedures to guide the decisions of the advisory committee should be developed in conjunction with the tourism industry and set down in writing.

- Consistent staff levels and funding should be made available to handle the work load associated with the responsibilities of the advisory committee. Continued advisory support should come from both the ministries of Natural Resources and Tourism and Recreation.

- Outfitters should be notified of the tag allocation earlier so they can have more lead time for promotion.

- Stronger efforts should be made to educate tourist outfitters on managing the moose resource through tag quotas and on the long-term commercial viability of moose hunting.

In November 1991, Wildman requested the review of the Tag Share System to consider ways of improving administration and communications between the advisory committee and outfitters, to determine how "new" outfitters might be included in the allocation process or how the operations of existing outfitters could be expanded. The review was also to identify ways of reducing the impact of potential moose tag quota reductions on tourist outfitters. Of the 650 questionnaires sent out in March 1992 to outfitters already in the system, 363 were returned. Approximately 300 people attended the five consultation meetings.

Wildman will present the government's response to the recommendations when he addresses the Northern Ontario Tourist Outfitters convention in Sault Ste. Marie on November 27.

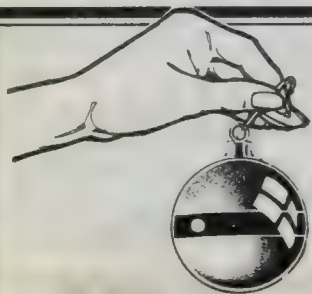

Copies of "A Review of the Allocation of Adult Moose Validation Tags Within the Tourism Industry" may be obtained at no cost from district and area offices of the Ministry of Natural Resources or district offices of the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation. It is also available from the Natural Resources Information Centre, Room M1-73, Macdonald Block, 900 Bay Street, Toronto, or by calling (416)314-2225.

Organizers of the annual Sled Dog Derby make ensure the welfare of the dogs takes precedence among everybody associated with the event. This year the race runs on January 9 and 10.

Welfare of sled dogs ensured by strict rules

Every year, the Minden Technical Challenge draws thousands of spectators to watch the world's best sled-dog teams and drivers compete for big bucks and medal points. This annual event — which will have its ninth running on January 9 and 10, 1993 — is one of the most exciting on the winter sports calendar.

But, in the midst of all the excitement, some spectators may pause and ask themselves whether sled-dog racing is managed to ensure the welfare of the dogs.

Over the past 25 years, the International Sled Dog Racing Association (ISDRA) has developed rules under which sled-dog races are conducted. These rules are designed to protect the dogs from accidents on the trail and only races that abide by those rules are sanctioned by ISDRA. In addition, each event is evaluated every year to assess the degree to which it meets ISDRA's standards. From the beginning, the Minden Technical Challenge has received sanctioning and been judged "Excellent".

Spectators may also be confused about "animal rights" versus "animal welfare". Those who believe in "animal rights" feel that all human activities that use animals in any way — whether for food or clothing or sports or zoos or circuses — exploit and abuse the animals. Some even believe having pets is wrong.

Most people, however, are more concerned about animal welfare:

they want to know that the animals are well cared for, properly fed and housed, and treated humanely. ISDRA has taken a stand on animal welfare that recognizes sled dogs as "athletes of singular ability, born with an instinctive love of running" and believes that "sled dogs deserve the highest quality of care and treatment".

To ensure this, ISDRA's regulations require race organizers to prohibit anyone convicted of animal abuse from participating in sanctioned events. The association also has a consultation service for mushers concerned about what is best for their dogs and is developing guidelines for proper kennel set-up and management.

Furthermore, the special loyalty that dogs offer to human beings has one of its highest expressions in the team work between a musher and his or her animals. The most successful drivers are renowned for their strong relationship with their dogs — a relationship that flows directly out of the care and concern they give their dogs every day.

All this means that spectators at any of the dozens of sanctioned sled-dog events across North America can rest assured that the welfare of the animals is uppermost in everyone's mind.

Everyone who comes to the Minden Technical Challenge will have a chance to see all this. The event is the world's largest limited-class sled-dog race. It has earned this acclaim through the size of its purse — $25,100 provided by race sponsor Martin Pet Foods of Elmira, Ontario — and the number of mushers, including many medal winners, who participate.

The start/finish line is right in the centre of Main Street, providing everyone with a ringside view of the action. Racing takes place throughout Saturday and Sunday, starting at 10:00 a.m. The delightful kid-and-mutt race is held on Saturday afternoon, after the official heats in the eight-and four-dog classes. The prizes are presented on Sunday afternoon.

In addition, visitors can enjoy demonstrations of kick-sledding, chat with "Drifter" the race mascot, and visit the dog lot to look over the animals and talk with the mushers. "Catch The Drift", a song written and recorded by local musicians, will be the theme song for the entire weekend.

The Haliburton Highlands, about a three-hour drive north of Toronto, is a well-known summertime recreational playground. The Minden Technical Challenge is one of several events that show off its beauties in the winter. The extensive tourist facilities of the Haliburton Highlands are ready to welcome all those visiting the area for the weekend. Further information is available from the Haliburton Chamber of Commerce at (800)461-7677.

1992 PROPERTY ASSESSMENT

The 1992 assessment roll, which lists the assessed value of each property in your municipality, is required to be delivered to your municipal clerk on December 22, 1992.

Your 1993 municipal and school taxes will be based on this value.

— The final date for appealing your 1992 assessment is January 12, 1993. —

If you have any questions about assessment, if you wish to meet with an assessor, or if you want to know how to appeal your assessment, please call the Regional Assessment Office.

The telephone number is in the Blue Pages under Government of Ontario — Ministry of Revenue — Property Assessment Information.

Bake sales raise cash for charity

Members of the Minden Women's Institute met at the Common Room on November 18. After some reports the Roll Call had produced many items of crafts and baking.

Collections for the Card Fund and Pennies for Friendship were taken and Irene Moore reported sending 16 cards since the last meeting.

We plan (weather permitting) to attend Tops and Trends at Baddow on Saturday, November 21.

It was decided to make up our donation to the Christmas Baskets to $50 with the major part coming from this afternoon sale.

Mary Cox, delegate to the Area Convention, brought a good report mentioning that the Convention next year will be held at a different location. The report prepared by Jean Lacey, convenor, was read there were several discussions and it was suggested that we have another sale later to help raise funds. After the usual closing, Auctioneer Irene was busy with sales and all had an enjoyable half hour followed by a tasty snack and a cup of tea.

The next meeting is the Christmas one at the United Church Hall on Wednesday, December 16 at 12 noon with a pot luck luncheon and exchange of $2 gifts. A programme is planned for that day and members are urged to bring a guest if possible.

Gluten-free dictionary

A pocket dictionary produced by the Canadian Celiac Association provides a handy shopping guide for people requiring a gluten-free diet.

Celiac sufferers cannot tolerate gluten, a protein found in wheat, rye and some other cereals.

The condition often shows up in babies at about 6 months of age, but can also develop in adulthood.

The dictionary may be ordered from the Canadian Celiac Association, 6591B Mississauga Rd., Mississauga, Ontario L5N 1A6.

The cost for non-members of the association is $7.15 plus $1.50 postage and handling.

The solution to even the most difficult problems begins with the first step. Contact your nearest Information Centre for assistance.

In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., call 457-2733. If you reside in the Minden area, the office is located in the Anson, Hindon and Minden Municipal Building, Milne St., open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., call 286-4100.

You, the library and Christmas

Christmas, the library, Hyland Crest, Minden Rotary Club and you...

What do these five things have in common? Well, at Christmas, the Minden branch of the Haliburton County Public Library invite all of its friends to meet with them at Hyland Crest for a special presentation presented for you with the assistance of the Rotary Club of Minden.

Once again, something special has been planned for the Hyland Crest auditorium at 10 a.m. on Saturday, December 5. And this year, "Yule" better watch out because David Archibald is coming to town with a sack full of action-packed holiday songs and similar such things. This "seasoned" performer will have all of the revelers just a-singing and a-bopping along to his unique blend of lively and touching original songs and new versions of old favourites. Fun for the whole family!

And of course, his close personal friend Santa Claus is just about certain to make an appearance. Only one way for you to find out if he will!

David has composed for Sesame Street in New York and has shared the stage with such notables as Sharon, Lois and Bram, not to mention The Canadian Brass. His live performance features a refreshing blend of his own up-beat compositions and tried and true standards.

So why not plan to attend and participate in this "community present"? It only happens once a year, and by the way, Season's Greetings from all of us at the Haliburton County Public Library. For more information contact Joel Levis at 457-2241.

German engineering creating better world

In this prolonged recession, stimulating the economy is the main preoccupation of politicians and the business community.

We have to be globally competitive, they tell us, and often that means environmental protection has to be relaxed because otherwise our products cost too much. We should consider an industrial and economic giant like Germany.

In 1988, delegates at an international conference on the atmosphere in Toronto called on governments to reduce CO2 emissions by 20 percent in 15 years.

On its own initiative, West Germany announced an even more stringent target of 25-30 percent reduction by 2005! (By contrast, the Atmosphere Convention adopted at the Earth Summit in Rio and signed by Canada merely seeks to stabilize 1990 CO2 levels by the year 2000.)

West Germany set its goals before reunification with East Germany whose industry is antiquated and polluting. Nevertheless, the country is still striving to meet its original target.

For years, industrialized countries have promised to commit 0.7 percent of their GNP to aid poor nations.

At Rio, rich countries reluctantly renewed that promise but only Holland and the Scandinavian countries actually met the target. Despite the staggering cost of reunification and cleaning up East Germany's industry, at Rio, Chancellor Kohl vowed to make a serious attempt to meet the 0.7 percent commitment "as soon as possible".

In Montreal in 1989, industrialized countries pledged to try to eliminate the use of CFCs by the year 2000.

But since depletion of the ozone layer has been faster than expected, that target was advanced by two years and Canada hopes to eliminate CFCs even sooner. Germany plans to eliminate CFCs by 1995 at the latest and is trying to phase them out by 1993!

These are impressive environmental commitments. Recently I spoke with Dr. Klaus Schmidt, first secretary of Germany's embassy in Ottawa who told me German politicians and business people take it for granted that the health of the economy cannot be separated from the quality of the environment.

As evidence, he ticked off governmental and industrial initiatives. For example, the Steilmann Institute has developed a line of clothing made from natural fibers and colors without added chemicals.

This reduces health and environmental costs of added chemicals. My bet is environmentally conscious consumers will make the Klaus Steilmann line of fashions a big hit.

Anticipating federal laws, the German auto industry is designing cars so components can be removed and reused. Auto designs now emphasize reduced environmental impact and safety (Mercedes was the first to have air bags as a standard feature).

German law says packaging that is not an essential component of a product must be accepted back by the merchant. The merchant may reuse it or return it to the manufacturer who cannot just dump it into the waste stream but must recycle or reuse it.

Most industry in North America and other countries of the European Community is not prepared to emulate these ecologically sensible practices.

Instead, they often demand greater freedom from government regulation to enhance their global competitiveness.

As in Japan, German industry works closely with government and trade unions in a kind of economic and environmental partnership. It is assumed the added costs of environmental responsibility will be recovered in the long run, but Schmidt declared, "We have to do this anyway because it is the right thing to do."

Why is Germany rather than Britain, France or Italy an environmental leader? For one thing, German culture has a rich mythology about nature. For another, the country is already paying the ecological costs of industrial development.

The famous Black Forest is dying as a result of acid rain created by European industry. German "forests" are really third and fourth-generation tree plantations lacking the rich diversity of real forests and are highly vulnerable to environmental stress.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

Germans have long agonized over their location between the nuclear superpowers. Chernobyl set off near hysteria over nuclear fallout. When 10 thousand seals died mysteriously in the North Sea, Germans knew they were analogous to canaries in coal mines.

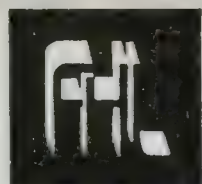

And the chemical spill at Basel that poisoned the Rhine, caused the death of a river deeply embedded in German folklore.

I've often met German tourists in remote parts of Canada, reveling in the natural beauty unmatched in their own country. They tell us we should value and care for our natural wonders far more than we do. And modern Germany shows that being ecologically responsible makes economic sense.

Murray Sisson wins deer contest

Submitted
by Tommy Williamson

Seventeen entries were submitted to Tommy's Big Buck Contest.

This year is the thirteenth and the contest is a joint venture of Tommy Williamson, local disc jockey and the Kinsmen Club of Minden, promoting safe hunting and generating funds for community projects through the dance known as the Minden Kinsmen's Hunters' Ball.

Tommy Williamson puts up $100 for the hunter bagging the largest Buck deer (by weight and field-dressed) in Haliburton County and who takes it to one of two official weigh-in stations for weight verification, namely Coneybeare's Butcher Shop in Minden and Four Seasons

Butcher Shop in Carnarvon. The hunter must be present or have a representative present at the dance in order to collect his prize. A keeper trophy is awarded to first and second place winners by the Minden Kinsmen Club and first place winner's name is entered onto the master trophy. This year the entries were as follows:

Five Harmony singers entertain seniors

Hallo everyone, how do you like the snow? Saturday we were entertained by five lovely harmony singers - Barb Fawcett, Barb Trocewicz, Rose Barry, Larry VanLieshout and Toos Reid. They sang and played a variety of sacred songs. We all enjoyed this very much and thank them from our hearts.

Sunday evening Chapel was conducted by Rev. John Burgess and Louise Leonard accompanying the hymns on the organ. Thank you John and Louise.

Monday, November 9, 1992 Residents' Council was held in the auditorium. Since many staff officials were absent, Isabel Keefer lent a hand to ensure we held a very good meeting.

In the evening Pat Bradburn showed the films "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" and "Jack Rabbit". Thank you greatly Pat.

Pastor Fast held the Tuesday Chapel service. The residents appreciate this. In the afternoon, Katherine Jarvis held another demonstration of making quilts in the new and easy way, "strip quilting". Thanks Katherine for showing us how adept you are.

Thursday was tea party held by the ladies of Minden Legion Auxiliary. They were Ann Baker, Lynn Sharpless, Corinne Arseneault and Muriel Harrington. The tea was delicious. We thank them so very much.

Happy Hour was Friday afternoon with Mike and Connie Biagi and Frank Faulkner providing the entertainment. We thank Mike, Connie and Frank so much for their helpfulness.

Friday evening the Grandfathers' 4 were here to help us enjoy the evening. Part of the group was away hunting but the three who were here did a wonderful job and we thank them sincerely. They were Bill Payne, Charlie Hadley and Don Burch.

Congratulations to Gladys Whyte who had a birthday November 15 and to Mary Burgess and Margaret Sisson both on November 18.

The Haliburton County Home Support Services wish to make sure all seniors over 55 years and/or physically challenged (18 years and older) who require the support services know what is provided in the county. Each week for a period of about five weeks, an item from their program will appear in the Senior League columns of the local papers.

Transportation: Available for local or out-of-town trips.

A two to three days notice is required for arrangements to be made and the cost to clients is 15 cents per kilometre from the volunteer's home to client's destination and return. The volunteers provide a personal touch. Clients are expected to pay a reasonable amount toward meals (depending on the length of the trip) and to pay for parking. H.C.H.S.S. subsidizes 12 cents to volunteers upon documented proof of mileage on a quarterly basis. This program enables seniors and/or physically challenged persons to keep appointments, bank, shop etc.

Training programs' study launched

Kawartha area training agencies are banding together in a cooperative initiative that will enhance the quality and cost effectiveness of training services delivered to employers in Peterborough, Victoria, Haliburton and North Hastings counties. The move to coordinate efforts and resources reflects the new initiatives of the Local Training and Adjustment Boards being established across the province.

The Kawartha Area Training Consortium is preparing to launch a study to ensure that skills training courses offered by public sector trainers meet the needs of the local economy. The partners in the project representing federal/provincial/local training agencies, span the entire geographic region and include: the Canada Employment Centres, Industrial Training Committees, Sir Sandford Fleming College, Trent University, the Ontario Skills Development Office and the brokers for the Jobs Ontario Training Fund.

"This initiative emanates from earlier studies designed to assess labour market conditions," said Dr. Torben Drewes, an economist from Trent University. Dr. Drewes is the Consortium's consultant on the project.

"This second study will enable us to build on the information derived from earlier surveys and use it to identify the primary training needs of employers throughout our region. In this way, we can ensure that the delivery systems are in place and that the training provided to employers is focussed, meaningful and cost efficient," explained Drewes. "To meet today's economic challenges, employers and employees are adapting to new technology, new service standards and a faster pace of change. Evidence indicates that successful firms are those who invest in the training necessary to improve performance," he continued. "We want a local labour force with the abilities and skills to attract high value-added business to the area."

A random sample of employers will receive the questionnaire over the next few weeks. Data collected will be outlined in a complete Report at the end of January. The Consortium will use this method to determine different training requirements on a twice a year, recurring basis. Even if cash-flow restrictions mean that current resources available for training are minimal, companies will still be asked to provide feedback on their situation and future needs in keeping with growth due to anticipated economic recovery. "This ongoing feedback will be used to help adjust our program mix and rationalize training services appropriately," said Drewes. "By having a process in place that monitors the pulse consistently, available training funds can be better directed to meet employers' requirements."

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

There will be a Laura James Home Show-ing hosted by Knox United Church in Coboconk on December 5, 2-4 p.m. Admission is free. See elegance in fashion and home decor. Refreshments will be served.

Club 35 euchre game winners for November 16 include Jean Scadden for most lone hands, Thelda Weston and Marian McClelland as high lady and man, Rhoda Woolner, Jim Bradbury, Pat Scadden and Fran Clark.

The Minden Library Committee will meet at the Library on Wednesday, November 25 at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of CHACE are holding a fundraiser Christmas Bazaar on Saturday, November 28 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at CHACE Place behind Sears in Minden. There will be a craft table, bake sale, handmade clothing and much more.

Ron and Peg Davis visited the county last week. Ron hunted with the local Minden gang while Peg enjoyed the company of her parents, Earl and Emma Hewitt.

Don't forget the Christmas Arts and Crafts Sale at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery from December 3-19.

Jack and Ethel Cowan of Phelpston were weekend visitors with Mary Cox. On Saturday, they joined the birthday party for brother-in-law Henry Gibson.

Weekly euchre games at St. Paul's Parish hall on Monday, November 16 most lone hands went to Marg McAfee while others were Joyce Hewitt and Jeanne Sears with the draw going to Joan Mackenzie. A special collection was taken in memory of Vera Ward toward a Prayer Book and next Monday, another collection will be taken toward a Prayer Book in memory of Jack Weekes.

May Hicks was away for a few days visiting Irene Minaker in Toronto.

Winners in Stanhope bridge games on November 17 were Helen Rice and Ray Brown. All bridge players are welcome to join the group every week.

Last weekend Kit Schroter was away enjoying a visit with relatives in Lakefield.

Clarence and Carol Precoor of Whitby spent last weekend at their summer home.

Gelert Centre had a good crowd enjoying euchre games on November 17 with winners including Bob Vick with most lone hands, Marion Minaker, May Hicks, Orval Francis and Murray McKinnon. Next games will be December 1 at 7 p.m.

Best wishes to Bill and Mabel Clendenning who just moved in to their new home.

All good wishes to the following: Tim Woods, Helen Johnson, Alice Morrison, Sherry Simmons, Irene Duncan, Jim Grant and Shirley Vank and Gord Kellett at home.

Bev Wood of Minden Library reports that book exchange will be this week with different selections ready for November 27.

Winners at Minden Legion card games on Thursday, November 19 included Marg McAfee and Jim Foster, high lady and man, Murray McKinnon and May Bradbury with most lone hands and others Maria Tschida, Shirley Elcome, Marg McAfee, George Hewitt, Jack Chilton and Tod Edgson.

The Minden Legion Senior Group had an enjoyable bus trip to Cullen Gardens on Tuesday, November 17. Some of the group had never been there before and they toured the gardens and gift shop and the Century home next door.

After supper many walked among the trees and the Christmas lights were, in many places, reflected in the water. An owl in white lights drifted back and forth between trees and an animated fawn leaped over a running rabbit. Others stayed in the theatre and enjoyed the three actors who gave a very good performance in a Christmas skit. To top off all the enjoyment, the bus driver Big David Bennett had a video tape with jokes and songs and the bus was filled with laughter. Everyone joined in a singalong and were soon home at Minden Legion.

Coming events called in: the Museum Committee will meet Tuesday, November 24 at 10 a.m.; the Genealogy group will meet at the Council Chambers on Wednesday, November 25; St. Paul's Christmas Luncheon and Bazaar is on November 27 from 10:30 to 2:30; Christmas Luncheon at Our Lady of Fatima R.C. Church hall on Friday, December 4 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. with baking and the Red Cross Craft table. Wednesday, December 2 Christmas bazaar at 2 p.m. in Zion United Church in Carnarvon. On Saturday, December 5 there will be a Christmas Bazaar at St. Anthony's R.C. Church in Haliburton 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Congratulations to Wendy (nee Davis) and Mike Iles on the birth of their son on Friday, November 20.

Let the good times roll

Stanhope Seniors "let the good times roll" last week when Reeve Fred Gardner officially opened "The Festive Season" with a great crowd at this luncheon meeting. After lunch the president talked about his dream of having a "Pastime Club" or drop-in centre. Members would have a place to meet friends have a coffee and chit chat or play cards, crokinole, shuffleboard, darts or whatever. Dale Anthes suggested that his dream club have three golden rules: No grumbling, no gambling and no booze. Violations of these could result in being "drummed out".

The reeve, councillor Jim Hicks and John Dron, while they did not commit themselves, seemed optimistic, especially since no capital investment was needed, and they all wanted to make more use of the building facilities.

Dale continued the fun part with a singalong and the jovial group raised the roof as he told some tall tales of his life as the innkeeper of Maple Sands.

Six new members were welcomed, in particular Bill and Myra Marshall who offered to do all they could to help. Bill agreed and was elected vice-president unanimously. He will take charge of all activities in the absence of the president. Arrangements have been made for the new TV and VCR to be installed in the near future and 50 new arm chairs pleased everyone. A big Christmas party is planned for December. The members will be contacted.

PITCH-IN AND RECYCLE

Ontario Hydro

Numerous customers were without power from Thursday, November 12.

By Monday, November 16 we had power restored to most of our customers.

We would like to thank the people who took the time and had the patience to call through to our office to report power lines and trees down. The damage was widespread throughout the county.

We had additional crews in to assist ours from Walkerton, Owen Sound, Barrie, Alliston, Orillia, Orangeville, and Fenelon Falls. Along with the people from Minden Area, they have shown a strong commitment to restore service under most trying circumstances.

We are requesting that anyone without power, or knowing of lines down or trees on the lines please call 286-2031.

PLEASE STAY CLEAR OF DOWNED LINES AND TREES

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Alice Don would like to express their sincere appreciation and thanks to all friends and family for all of the support, well wishes, cards and floral tributes. Special thanks to the VON and Monk's Funeral Home, especially to Kirsten and Barry who made a most difficult time easier. Also, special thanks to Dr. DeRoode who was always there for all of us. Alice enjoyed her job so much at the Gallery and through the Gallery she made so many special friends who all meant so much to her. Again, thank you all so much.

David, Andrew and Lesley.

We would like to thank everyone who helped us locate our calves on the weekend. Keith Casey who located their tracks with his snow machine then walked miles in the heavy snow. Paul Daigle and his machine both on Sunday and Monday. Harold Harrison and Gary Larson who walked miles on Monday in the snow. Jim Walker who found them and brought them home in his horse trailer. Mr. Casey who picked up the men and drove them home and everyone who phoned trying to locate them. This is the meaning of having wonderful neighbours. We couldn't have done it alone. Thanks again everyone,
J & J Fairfield.

IN MEMORIAM

HUGHES: In loving memory of our dear sons and brothers who passed away suddenly Laverne August 20, 1978 and Lanny, November 29, 1982.

Do not stand beside our graves and weep,
 We are not there, we do not sleep.
 We are in the many winds that blow,
 The rain, the sunshine and the snow.
 We are with you wherever you may go.
 Until we meet again.
 Ever remembered and sadly missed by Mom, Lenore, Neil and Wendy, Bryce and Cathy and families.

IN MEMORIAM

HANCOCK: In memory of Jodie who died suddenly November 25, 1991.

Always missed - Never forgotten.
 Love, Uncle Tim, Aunt Jean and family.

BURK: In loving memory of my dear husband Cecil who passed away November 27, 1987.

Once in a while, we meet someone who always knows how to make us feel good, who understands us as few others do and who is there to listen when we have something to share. Once in a while we find someone we can really depend on, and when we do, it's like coming home, my dear Cecil.
 His loving wife, Jean.

ROBINSON: In loving memory of a dear husband and father Philip, who passed away November 18, 1986.

The years come and the years go,
 Our tears still fall and we still miss you so.
 Remembered forever and always loved by Florence and Bradley, Janice and Jack, Doug and Karen.

HUGHES: In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Shirley, who passed away November 27, 1990.

If I had all the world to give,
 I'd give it, yes, and more,
 To hear her voice, to see her smile
 And greet her at the door.
 But all I can do, dear mother,
 Is to go and tend your grave,
 And leave behind tokens of love,
 To the best mother God ever made.
 I like to think when life is done,
 Wherever Heaven may be,
 She'll be standing at the door, up there,
 Waiting to welcome me.

Sadly missed and always loved,
 Joanne, Kirk, Kevin and Janine Harrison.
